MULEY LEENA

Art and Design Diploma, Fashion Design first year

Central Saint Martin's College of Art And Design, London

"I was particularly influenced by the nature of design, from the pure and the vibration of the primary colors contrasting with the grays, the cream, the beiges and blacks.

I discovered the photographs of Lucien Hervé and their contrasts between light and shadow.

For the silhouette I got the inspiration by the continuity of certain tubular furniture designed by Bauhaus and I developed the idea of an outfit, which could literally be taken apart and made into sheets and then be remounted as we like that I love to define "Flat packed".

At this point it seems natural to choose fabrics that refers to boxes and packages, such as perforated fabrics or plastic bubble of protection, deciding that the basic color has to be the red orange which has characterized the production of the Bauhaus "
